

software Trial version user statement

[Basic rules]

In connection with obtaining access to the trial version of ConSEL Plus software [hereinafter referred to as the "Software"], we undertake to use the Software in good faith and therefore with the purpose of determining the suitability and adequacy of the Software to meet the needs that the Software is expected to serve. When using the trial version of the software, we undertake to comply with the provisions of this statement and with any other instructions from the licensor. The trial version can differ from the full version of the software by having limited functionalities or different graphical user interface items

[Trial version – terms of use]

We undertake:

1. Use the trial version of the software only for our own purposes and to verify the suitability of the software before purchasing a licence. Any other use of the software is not permitted.
2. Not to make the software accessible to third parties or otherwise use the software in an unintended way.
3. Not to translate, make any changes, decompile, disassemble, transmit, distribute, display, reproduce, publish or exhibit any part of the Software, in any form, by any means.
4. Not to take or permit any actions aimed at reproducing the source code of the Software.

[Copyrights]

All proprietary rights and intellectual property rights in the software (including all images, photographs, animations, video and sound recordings, music, text and "applets" comprising the System) are owned by the developer of the software. All proprietary rights and intellectual property rights in the content made accessible by the software belong to the content's respective owners and may be protected by copyright and other legislation and international agreements on protection of intellectual property rights.